Harry Cassidy remains among Top 150 real estate agents in America

Once again Downriver real estate agent Harry Cassidy has been named among the Top 150 real estate salespeople in the nation by REALTOR® Magazine — the official publication of the National Association of Realtors.

Harry's rank of 148 makes him one of only four Michigan real estate salespeople to break into the Top 150. Harry is one of only six agents in Michigan to be named to the entire Top 300 list.

Last year, Harry was one of only three Michigan agents to break into the Top 150.

The special report on the "Top 300 Residential Salespeople" in America appeared in REALTOR® Magazine.

According to the National Association of Realtors, there are more than 700,000 real estate salespeople at work across the United States. The "Top 300 Residential Salespeople" were selected from a list of approximately 1,100 salespeople who submitted their efforts for consideration.

In making its determination, Realtor Magazine used a formula that took into account the actual dollar amount of all transactions, as well as the number of transactions.

The published list also includes the number of assistants being used by each agent.

For the 2001 sales year, Harry sold 206 units at a value of $25.55 million. For the 2000 sales year, Harry sold 175 units at a value of $21.3 million. For the 2007 sales year, Harry sold over 175 units at a value of over $25 million — again making him the No. 1 "Producer" and the No. 1 "Salesman" in the Downriver area of metropolitan Detroit* and he has been able to maintain a high volume of annual sales and top agent status in the very difficult years of 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012 and once again in 2013, 2014 and 2015 as the market was rebounding. To learn more about Harry Cassidy — and how he's attained a top spot in the ranks of residential real estate agents in Michigan, see the enclosed materials.
